Makovers for everyone. Evergreen Parent Link Centre invited parents and children at the Frank Maddock Cosmetology lab where students from Grade 10, 11 and 12 worked on their hair. The experience was for credit for the high school students while moms and toddlers got a bit of pampering during their time there. About 25 people signed up for the event that ran for two days last week. Turn to page 29 for more pictures.

IT'S TIME TO SAVE OUR COUNTY

We need to take action now

We've lost a year, very little has happened in fact, we've gone backwards.

What's the Solution?

THE 8 POINT PLAN

1. Listen to the creative ideas of citizens including youth and seniors, then implement investment.
2. Roll back council wages by 10%.
3. Take immediate action by reinvesting the rainy day reserves into county infrastructure. This can help private sector jobs and buffer the recession.
4. Streamline our government to be as efficient as possible. Remove all government red tape that has become a burden to our development.
5. Make economic development truly economical.
6. Reduce all fees, get rid of permits that increase cost, delays and public frustration.
7. Make affordable housing actually affordable. Eliminate costly studies and fees that drive up the cost of development.
8. Lower the residential tax rate by a minimum 30% a year until we have the lowest residential tax rate and lowest cost of living in the Province.

These first steps are simple & attainable

EXPERIENCED LEADERSHIP

County's throughout Alberta are facing what I call the 'urban assault.' Brazeau County has always paid their fair share with our urban friends and will continue to do so when it benefits our citizens.

We are in a recession, rural areas need rural solutions to survive.

Editorial

If you see something, say something

This was one of the rules management at Rexall Place in Edmonton laid down to its employees when they were hired. It means that if employees see something dangerous, whether it's unbecoming conduct by an event attendee or a fellow employee, improper use of equipment or a hazardous workplace, they were to report it to their team, section or area leaders.

It's a good system and it works. Recently local resident Nicole Fuhrer used that rule after her three-year-old grandson came very close to falling through a wooden paler into a catch basin that would have swept him through a culvert into a retention pond. Once the boy was out of harm's way, Fuhrer then spent three days attempting to right a wrong.

Minutes after the incident, Fuhrer was on the phone to the Public Works Department, who responded quickly and moved concrete barriers over some of the catch basins as a quick stopgap. That done, Fuhrer also attempted to find out the company or individual responsible for the oversight, but came up empty-handed.

Town employees said they didn't know who they might be, which frustrated Fuhrer even more after two days of trying. However, she did manage to speak directly with the mayor, and the next morning, heavy steel grates were installed over the offending catch basins. I've lived here for 13 years and never said anything before, but this hit too close to home. My grandson could have died and there are neighbourhood children who play in this area all the time," said Fuhrer.

Luckily, a tragedy was prevented over the March 7th weekend; however, the question remains as to why there were no barriers, snow fences, flags or warning systems in place before the catch basins were discovered when the snow melted in the area. At the very minimum, snow fences around the perimeter of the catch basins should have been in place.

The local fire department has been warning residents to stay off ice in ponds, rivers and the like, but when we really stop to think about it, hazards can occur anywhere and at any time, and it's up to everybody to be as vigilant as possible in preventing accidents and even near tragedies like the one Fuhrer encountered over the weekend.

Kudos to Fuhrer for not giving up on a bad situation and to the Town of Drayton Valley for responding as quickly as it did.

Getting used to the new normal

Finally, the numbers of desks occupied in the Western Review office are back up to a comforting digit. I can raise my glass to the end of six crazy weeks, with long hours and no time to breathe. On the plus side, it leaves me time to write columns. Or make like brainstorm column ideas for days and write it in ten minutes.

I really don't mind the work; the pressure and the action and everything else that comes with it. This is especially when you are all by yourself, paddling away but have no idea where you will end up. I chose journalism, not for the money, but because I knew the end product of a job well done. And that makes my day. I have realized that in the past month I do love the job, despite my back crying out in pain. I like what I do as long as I isn't for those people who will do just about anything to ruin your day. To ruin a story, or to ruin your entire week.

But I believe that every job, isn't it? I am sure you can now picture that one person who ruined your last week, can't you? Not my job. And sure, I was aware I would have to be dealing with people on a daily basis. I clearly didn't think it can be sometimes, let's say, exhausting.

Mamta's Mullins
Mamta Mullins

Recently, I came across someone who reminded me that you are only going to get as good as people you surround yourself with. That is certainly true because you are only as good as the company you keep. If stuck with me because that same week I also came across someone who threw a chair out of the second floor window. I opened my mouth to yell, but the window, threw it out and shut the window. I guess the same was for someone else to pick up that chair.

Because every once in a while those who wear that you are doing every day will come around and give you a cactus. Yes, that happened as well.

Might as well throw civilization and decency out the window, buddy. These are people we meet in our everyday lives, whether or not you are a journalist.

Some of these people really don't deserve the attention they are asking of you. They are running out of you! Come back. I did have a George Costanza moment recently where I couldn't figure out what to tell someone when they said something to me. Remember the "Jerk store called and they are running out of you!" comeback that he realizes two hours after the incident in that famous Seinfeld episode? Yes, that happened. Except in my case, I still can't think of a comeback. In those circumstances smile and move along.

Sometimes I shrug as well. Point is, are you happy with your story? Are you satisfied with your reporting and you have everything to back you up? If the answer is yes, smile at the world and work on the next story. As long as you know you did your job right, there's all that matters. Someone explained that to me recently.

Because every once in a while those who wear that you are doing every day will come around and give you a cactus. Yes, that happened as well.

Letters to the editor

Importance of immigrants to rural communities

I read the article about helping immigrants integrate in the community and sincerely appreciated its message. I agree that it is important to make newcomers feel welcome and help them transition into our rural communities. With the large migration of the rural population into urban areas, I believe it is worthwhile to invest time and money into programs to help these newcomers feel part of the community. Immigrants can bring skills, diversity, boost the economies and help maintain the population of rural communities.

Canada has become transformed by immigration, new cultural values, innovation, and economic resources. Whether immigrants stay in rural Canada depends on if they find work make new friends, and learn Canadian values and traditions. By offering language programs, Drayton Valley is helping to remove the language barriers and help these newcomers fit into the community. This will not only benefit Drayton Valley, but also surrounding rural communities. Higher immigration rates means higher demand for community services, such as restaurants, gas stations, etc. With the low oil prices this may be important to maintain the economy of these rural communities. Look forward to seeing the outcome of these programs.

Why I am supporting Bart Guyon

It is true that I was an integral part of the last corporate review that took place approximately 10 years ago. Having said that, it is clear to me that Mr. Guyon has paid the price, has learned from his mistakes, and has moved on—and so have I. His capacity to run the county was never in doubt and that talent is needed now. His vision for the county places the county first. His election as Reeve has to do with keeping our county versus losing it. My cards are with Mr. Guyon. The ten-year plan that was discussed last week has several more million County dollars proposed for roadworks within the Town of Drayton Valley. This is yet another blatant example of the ridiculous giving to a corporate entity that should provide funding from its own tax base. Their use of our rate alone constitutes a benefit to them totally at our expense I expect that Mr.

Guyon will make every effort to keep county funds in and working for the county. Amalgamation is not part of my view either. Mr. Guyon's election has to do with keeping our county for county residents versus losing it to amalgamation.

The importance of this by-election cannot be underplayed. We are at a crossroads and depending on which way we turn, our county is kept or lost. I feel the situation is that serious.

Lynn Oberle

Wake up Brazeau County citizens! Wake up!

I've heard the pen is mightier than the sword, so here goes. My name is Garry Mastror. I have been watching and trying to help the County simply the Land Use Bylaw for the last several years. We seem to get to a certain point and then it's shelved only to start over a few months later.

I am volunteering time on the Land Use Bylaw Steering Committee trying to put some common sense into it. I know I am not supposed to use that phrase "common sense", but I still believe some of us out there have it.

For instance, here are some examples: you can't do anything on a 10-acre parcel without a permit. That means you can't cut a tree, plant a tree or even a flowerbed without a permit. If you get a permit to build a home you have to be done within a year; or if you need another permit and if you're not done in two years, you will be fined $10,000 or a year in jail. Just think, with the downturn in the oil patch, you may not be able to find your home. I guess you'll have free room and board where they intend to send you. You can't have a trailer or RV over 21' on your property or live in one while building your home. I know this is all hard to believe, but it's true.

This is why I'm asking you to put some real leadership into Brazeau County by electing Bart Guyon. He has experience, leadership and a love for Brazeau County.

And YES, Black Top Bait paved a lot of roads in our county. And YES some may have gone past his property. It's important to note he couldn't have done any of that without council approval. He also put skating rinks in most county communities and if the new council would put water to the rinks, I'm sure they'd be used. I'm sure if the ones in town didn't have water, they wouldn't get used either. And YES, I know I ran to get Black Top Bait out of office and YES I am suggesting you give him another chance. We job your home. I guess you'll have free room and board where they intend to send you. You can't have a trailer or RV over 21' on your property or live in one while building your home. I know this is all hard to believe, but it's true.

I know there's another gentleman, Jason Kennedy running for Reeve. I work with him on the Land Use Bylaw Steering Committee. I feel he still needs time to gain experience before he can be a Reeve. I'm fairly sure with time and hard work he may be a good one, but right now we need a Reeve with experience.

If you're wondering why I am doing this, it is for the people working hard with their heads down and as up who may be unaware of what is going on. I am trying to help and give back to our community.

Thank you

Garry Mastror Sr.

It's time to set the record straight

My name is Louise LaForce, and we are supporting Bart Guyon for a number of good reasons.

But first let's talk about the smear campaign that has raised its ugly head. The only time you hear about the review is when someone wants to misconstrue the truth and use it to defame Bart.

Bart Guyon was targeted by Cuff in two areas: a road and a staff issue. First, I am the responsible for lobbying Bart to do the first two miles of the road in question. We got over 600 names on a petition to upgrade a number of roads in the county.

The fact is this road was busier than a lot of roads that got paved so it fit the criteria. Bart Guyon was busy paving and building every one else's road, so he didn't include it. We felt we shouldn't be punished just because the Reeve was our neighbor.

The fact never went past any of his land and if it had been built (which it never has) his driveway would have been about 2 kms away. Bart Guyon was accused by Cuff that he put the road in line with the school board park in Drayton Valley.

His support of the horse trail and cross country ski trails is more proof of his dedication to all ages. Bart has always supported the county in paying the share of joint facilities with the town. Bart is a big picture guy and he's proven that in many ways.

The most important issue he faced was an amalgamation. In the other 2000, it was another play by the town to vote against it. Bart was the one that fought this and voted against it. Had we not had Bart at the table then we would be dealing with a town election not a county election. Bart saved us once and he will save us again.

We are in a recession and we need his broad range of experiences, his relationships with other levels of government and his never ending energy to get us through this. The result of us electing Bart Guyon will be to create jobs for all the other employees, including our youth.

Brazeau County lost one of the most cost effective and creative Reeves this area ever has seen. Bart Guyon didn't lose, we did. Bart has been a success in whatever he has done. He gets knocked down but he gets back up. He has continued to defend our county over the years since he left politics. County allowed him to fight for this area despite how he's been treated by individuals focused on their own greed and jealousy beyond me, but he will support him to the end. I hope all of you will think of this. If we want to save our county, we need to bring back Bart. There are 2.5 years left in this term. We need action and we need it now. We've heard lots of politicians say the right words but they have lacked the ability to help rural citizens. The one thing we can trust is Bart means what he says. He is a man of action; his political and personal life is proof of it. LET'S BRING BACK BART!

Let us remove the JUST from our lives!

How many of us have phoned someone and in response to their telephone answer replied with an "It's just me." I never really gave this a second thought until someone replied to me saying, "Oh hi, just Sue." When I heard my own words being echoed back to me I realized what these words actually sounded like. Are we really "just anything?" The word "just" makes it sound like we are excusing ourselves, saying that "I'm not a big deal," "I'm not anything exciting" or "I'm not anything important." The word "just" really brings down a sense of the amazing people that we are.

When we refer to our jobs or the things we do "just" is overused as well. I'm "just" a stay at home mom. Really, how can you be "just a stay at home mom?" You manage a home, you wake up all times of the night, you provide meals for your family, you love and care for your family. There is no "just" in this job. "Just" just makes it sound like we are excusing ourselves, saying that "I'm not a big deal," "I'm not anything exciting" or "I'm not anything important." The word "just" really brings down a sense of the amazing people that we are.

a home to live in we are able to provide ourselves with warmth and shelter from the cold winters, we are able to sit around a table to eat our meals, we have a place that we can call home, no matter how large or small it is. There is no "just" in the homes that we live in or provide for our families.

Small towns are also often labelled with the word "just." "I just live in Drayton Valley, Breton, Lacombe," to name a few. These communities are vital to our existence. They provide us with safety, a neighbour to say 'hi' to, education for our children, somewhere to buy our food and a place to be employed. These communities play an important part in the lives of ourselves and our families.

So how do we get rid of the "just" in our lives? We need to build on our self-esteem and value who we are and where we are. The Canadian Mental Health Association lists the following as what good self-esteem looks like:

- Having a healthy view of yourself
- Having a quiet sense of self-worth
- Having a positive outlook
- Feeling satisfied with yourself most of the time
- Setting realistic goals
- So let's be proud of who we are, and where we are. Let's not focus on the negative parts of our lives but instead be positive and thankful for what we have and who we are, and set goals for the future. As we find gratitude and recognize what we truly have, "just" can just disappear.

Town might built their own animal control facility

News from Town of Drayton
Valley governance and priorities meeting on March 12

Marta Little
Western Review

Town of Drayton Valley has four options to deal with an ongoing animal control issue.

Those options include hiring a local private contractor, outsourcing a contractor, building their own facility or using the old county public works building for an animal shelter facility.

Director of protective services for the Town of Drayton Valley, Tom Thomson who brought forward the four choices, said he supported the town building its own facility for animal shelter.

Currently, both the town and the county have interin contracts with Grande Kenes.

He read pros and cons for all four choices, with an up front cost being a disadvantage to building a facility.

He said he had three locations in mind to build a facility: by the new water treatment facility, by the local waste management facility and behind Apex Monarch building. Out of the three, he favoured the latter choice.

"It's industrial so residents won't be complaining about noise," said Thomson.

He said there was an interest from Cause for Critters who want to do animal control and look after animals at the shelter for a fee.

Coun. Nicole Nadeau asked if the town could contract to the county instead of jointly considering the project.

Deputy Mayor Dean Shular said he prefers on his own the town builds something on its own instead of jointly with the county given that it will be feaster. Coun. Brandy Fredrickson noted that building a facility would be a "wonderful community project" if the town could get the public involved.

The issue will be part of budget discussions scheduled to take place in a few weeks.

EVENING MEETING FEEDBACK

On March 11 the Town of Drayton Valley hosted an evening meeting, the first of its kind in many years making meetings more accessible to public.

At the governance and priorities meeting which was scheduled next morning, council discussed ways to make sure the public feels welcome.

Coun. Graham Long suggested avoiding private sessions in those meetings. "If these meetings are appealed to the public, avoid in-camera (sessions) whenever possible. I know sometimes it's inevitable," said Long.

Councillors also discussed having signage around the Civic Centre.

BRANDING
The Town of Drayton Valley is exploring rebranding this year with the help of public input.

"So everybody knows what Drayton Valley means and what Drayton valley stands for so it's unified one message that everybody understands, whether it is oil town and that's what we stay with or whatever new comes along," said Communications and Marketing Coordinator, Jill Buehler.

The town has budgeted funds for branding, although the figures could not be confirmed at the meeting.

According to a quote from one company, the town would need about $54,000 for the process.

THUNDER IN THE VALLEY
Thunder in the Valley event organizers have reached out to the Town of Drayton Valley to ask for help with funding, due to a safety issue. Northern Thunder Classic Car Club is looking for around $60,000 to resurface the starting line of the race track.

Councillors discussed use of the facility and the terms should money be provided. It was decided that the issue will be part of budget discussions later this month.

LETTERS ASKING FOR COUNTY'S SUPPORT
Coun. Graham Long noted that the town has sent three letters to Brazeau County asking for their support in regard to Early Childhood Education Centre, Bus Hub and RCMP services.

In regard with the bus hub, Long noted that most of the children in need of the service are county residents.

"Seventy per cent of children live in the county so I hope we will hear something positive," said Long. According to a press release from the town, Early Childhood Development Centre serves children from both town and the county with numbers sitting at about 42 per cent from the county and 52 per cent from the town.

"These services are used by citizens across the region," said Mayor Glenn McLean in the release. "This is an excellent opportunity for Brazeau County to participate in the provision of these important services to our community."

NEW POSITION AT THE TOWN
Town of Drayton Valley is in conversation with an individual who has applied for Director of Planning, Development and Infrastructure.

The person in that position will be responsible for planning, organizing and directing of all engineering design, surveying and traffic engineering, municipal civic engineering programs, public works programs, streets, sewer and water services.

STAR LIGHT Day inspires youth

Special to the Western Review

From pop music to hymns, coolies to faith, a self-proclaimed Catholic Ninja brought his message of the church evangelization to a captivated audience of more than 1,000 STAR Catholic students.

Held March 2 at the Leduc Recreation Centre, singer, songwriter, guitarist and story-teller Jesse Manibusan addressed grades 7 to 12 Catholic school students from Leduc, Drayton Valley, Lacanville, Wetsask, and Porcupine in STAR Catholic's inaugural STAR LIGHT Day.

"Evangelization is just being alive in the world and creating energy and creating excitement, creating life, creating joy. It doesn't necessarily mean that you are religious, super religious or super pious," Manibusan told those gathered, adding it's something you do every day, bringing excitement and joy.

Manibusan shared stories and song with the students, not only exploring their faith but with a mix of hymns and rock, rap and country he related to the students from pop culture to peer pressure.

"Who's the church?" Manibusan asked. "We are," responded the students.

"Where's the church?" "Right here, and everywhere."

"We have been given this life that you and I have this opportunity to be connected to faith, to be part of an institution that seeks to become better versions of themselves, to be part of the Catholic community, to be part of the Christian community, to be part of the faith community," said Manibusan.

Canada Water Week Celebrations

Locals can participate in a water taste test and also learn more about water resources in Drayton Valley area

Justin Klineham
Western Review

The Eagle Point-Blue Rapids Parks Council is holding a celebration on March 18 from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Drayton Valley Provincial Building in observance of Canada Water Week.

JeanAnne Telake, Education and Outreach Coordinator for Eagle Point-Blue Rapids Parks

Council, said Canada Water Week is an annual initiative to educate Canadians on the importance of water resources.

"Canada Water Week is held every year in March and this year it is from March 17 to 23 and it coincides with World Water Day which is on March 22," she said. "It is an event to raise awareness about water and water shed in our country and creating awareness is done by fun family-friendly events that people can attend and learn more about water resources in our community."

The one-day celebration prepared in town for the locals will include water taste test and more information about water resources in the Drayton Valley area.

"We are going to have a water taste test where people can see if they know how to tell the difference between tap water, bottled water and well water," Telake said. "We are also going to have some information on water testing in our community and about the North Saskatchewan river water shed."

Telake encourages everyone in the community to come out to this free event. "We want entire families to come out," she said. "Water is definitely a very important resource to Drayton Valley with the North Saskatchewan river being right on the outskirts of our town. We just want people to realize the importance of the North Saskatchewan river and what it does for wildlife and people, agriculture and industry in our community and just have people have a little bit of fun while learning more about water."

For more information, contact JeanAnne Telake at (780)898-7275 or find Eagle Point-Blue Rapids Parks Council on Facebook.

Question and answer

Questions asked of the two county reeve candidates

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

Following questions were submitted to candidate Jason Kennedy and Bart Guyon ahead of the by election. Their replies are printed as submitted.

What is your platform?

These are my platforms in my platform.
1. I will ensure that we fit the Land Use Bylaw to fit the needs of Brzeau County and make it effective but also efficient. We need effective public involvement, but the process has to move forward so we get results by this fall. We have to strike the right balance between protecting agriculture and rural values, and allowing a reasonable amount of business development. And most importantly administration has to think of residents as customers and provide good customer service, without unnecessary bureaucracy.
2. We need to live within our means. The County will be taking some of the revenues from changes to linear assessments and will face reductions in provincial grants. There is some excessive bureaucracy and some fat, but I will ensure that we can trim that fat with a scalpel, not an axe. I will not support a slash and burn approach to cost reductions that puts our services and cripples the County.
3. I will bring a business approach to improve the efficiency of Council decision-making by making sure that administration brings the right information to Council when issues come to the table, then having the discussion once, and making decisions without deferring them.
4. I am committed to maintaining an effective and professional relationship with County Administration. I don't want bureaucracy but I do respect technical expertise and professional management. Council can take charge and provide clear policy and direction, but it should not be done in the weeds doing the administrative work.

5. I will ensure that we continue to invest in Recreational, Sports and Cultural Infrastructure that will keep our young people here and will help us attract and hold new employees with their families. We have to be able to compete with other municipalities in attracting and holding new employees, and young families, and supporting retiring seniors.

6. I am committed to improving the working relationship with the Town of Drayton Valley, Village of Breton, and all the Hamlets. We have to find ways to cooperate and to eliminate inefficiency and duplication. I will ensure that we protect our unique rural character and needs of the County.

What will be your first step if you were elected?
Thank my supporters, call Bart Guyon, and thank him for running and ask him to continue to offer his input and his ideas for improving the County in a constructive way, then develop an action plan with Council for addressing my platform as a team.

What do you plan to do with Land Use Bylaw?
It's the first plank in my platform - see above.

Why should Brzeau County residents vote for you?
I believe I am bringing a fresh perspective as well as leadership based on respect and listening, that will allow the Brzeau County to get out of the past and move into a successful future. In doing that we will be able to keep our children and grandchildren living in the Brzeau County. I've been successful in business and in family life because of my honesty and my integrity, my genuine concern for others, and my work ethic, and I want to give back to the community.

What is one change you want to see in our County?
Reduce the negativity and the unnecessary fighting within the community. I want to make sure that we can provide services and improvements in our rural families and outlying areas that ensure their needs are being met. We can make sure that we are spending more time in the smaller communities, understanding their concerns and their ideas for solutions. The conflict and fear people have can be resolved, but we have to put a reasonable share of resources and our staff time where their concerns are.

How do you plan to handle some of the concerns residents have raised like the animal control bylaw or some of the petitions that are coming around like the county review?
In regards to the Animal Control, I need to take a serious stance on investigating the problems, stand behind our County residents and take action.

The petition from the County Residents regarding the municipal review showed that there are concerns amongst the residents that Council needs to address. This process will hold Council accountable and let Rate Payers be heard. This is the democratic way, and should be supported by current Council and the future Review. It will only make our County a better place to live.

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

1. What is your platform?
My platform is based on my 10 Year Plan. It involves moving this municipality forward to where we'll have the lowest cost of living in the Province.

2. What will be your first step if you were elected?
To have a heart to heart discussion with council and administration on ways to enhance life in the county.

3. What do you plan to do with Land Use Bylaw?
Burn it. Ha-ha. Clearly we need to thoroughly go through it and remove all impediments to growth and public listening.

4. Why should Brzeau County residents vote for you?
I've proven my dedication and loyalty to our county and our people. I want this community to thrive not just survive.

5. What is one change you want to see in our County?
Create a culture within council and management to focus on a 'county citizen's best philosophy'.

6. How do you plan to handle some of the concerns residents have raised like the animal control bylaw or some of the petitions that are coming around like the county review?
Although he managed to pay $700 of it back, twenty-eight year-old Logan Briner was sentenced to 30 days in custody for breach of probation plus a victim surcharge of one day in default.

He was also ordered to pay back the remaining $1800 in restitution to his former employer.

DRAYTON VALLEY RESIDENT GIVEN A SUSPENDED SENTENCE
It could have been much worse for a Drayton Valley resident who was recently charged with theft under $5,000 and three counts of possession of stolen property.

Instead of jail time for stealing two dirt bikes, a license plate and a car, twenty-one-year-old Jordan Ruff received an 18 month suspended sentence and was ordered to pay $600 restitution for possession of stolen property plus a victim surcharge, provide a DNA sample to peace officers, keep the peace and be of good character and not have contact with three associates. He is also to report to a probation officer, provide blood, breath or urine samples when requested, and attend counselling and treatment as provided by his probation officer. He was given until June 9 to pay the restitution and surcharge.

COUPLE CHARGED WITH POSSESSION OF CANNIBIS MARIJUANA AND CARELESS USE/STORAGE OF FIREARMS
A Drayton Valley area couple who were charged with possession of cannabis marijuana and careless use/storage of two firearms both pled guilty in provincial court on March 10. According to Crown Prosecutor David Clifton, in February of last year RCMP conducting a drug investigation led them to a home in Rocky Rapids where William Waughal and Amanda Sutherland were residing. Police discovered 250 grams of cannabis marijuana in the home plus two rifles stored in an unlocked closet in a bedroom.

Before sentencing the pair, Judge J.L. Schaffter acknowledged them for not being more responsible with the firearms as there were young children in the home, and noted these were very serious offences.

"Looking at the circumstances of this case, you will have criminal records as a result," she said. Sutherland was put on probation for one year, prohibiting her from owning firearms for 10 years and ordering her to pay a fine of $2500 plus a victim surcharge. Waughal was also put on probation for one year, prohibiting him from owning firearms for 10 years and ordered to pay $2500 inclusive of a victim surcharge. Both are also ordered to take counselling and treatment as their probation officer deems appropriate.

Local U19 ringette team hosts provincials

➤ U19 Velocity Ringette team remains undefeated in the Black Gold Ringette League

Justin Kimmelman
Western Review

The Ringette Alberta U19 Provincial Championship being hosted by Drayton Valley Ringette Association will be held at the Drayton Valley Omplex from March 27 to March 29.

The local U19 Velocity Ringette team proudly sits on top of the Black Gold Ringette League and aims to come up on top in this year's provincial championship.

"We are the first in our league and we are undefeated in our league," said Miranda Shannon, team captain. "I feel really strongly about our team. We have been playing together for about eight years. We get along great and we have so much fun."

When Ringette Alberta opened the floor for teams to host this year's provincial championship, Shannon's team stepped up.

"It is the first time in a long time that it was held here. Ringette Alberta asked if anyone wants to host and we offered to host it," Shannon said. "We offered to host it because provincials is really fun and so we kind of put our own spin on it and make it fun for other teams. It is really cool to have it in our hometown because then family and friends can come watch so that is really neat."

Shannon said the team and other supporters are all working hard in organizing the event.

"All of us girls (we are all between the ages of 15 to 19) are organizing this. We take on a lot of the responsibilities ourselves along with our parents and we have two really awesome volunteer coaches that are helping us," she said. "There will be a raffle table and lots of fun stuff. There will be a banquet, there are games, and there is the finals to find out who the best team in Alberta is and that gets really fun and intense and fast-paced."

Aside from planning the three-day event, the girls are also busy with practicing for the games.

"We do lots of practising twice a week with different drills and different plays kind of thing," Shannon said. "We can change our plays depending on the team. If it is a really strong team, we might put more defence in or that kind of thing. We also play practice games or exhibition games against other teams to just prepare."

The Drayton Valley community is encouraged to support the local ringette team by watching the girls play.

"If people want to come out and watch and cheer us on that is always fun," Shannon said. "I think people should check it out because it showcases a sport that not many people either have heard of or know about. It encourages the younger ages and say 'oh that is what we get to be like and that would be us one day'. It encourages them to keep playing."

Shannon said ringette is a sport that really focuses on teamwork.

"Ringette is a really fast-paced strategic sport. It is a lot different from others because it involves a lot of teamwork and you have to work with each other to pass and there is really no way for one person to control the whole game," she said. "You have to work as a team and help everyone else. There are lots of plays and lots of planning that goes with it so you really have to be looking ahead and look at your other players and trust each other."

Additional voting stations

Residents have more choices

Braceau County will be providing additional voting stations at the March 23 by-election in the county.

According to a recent press release, the county received permission from Alberta Municipal Affairs to pass a by-law that would allow for more than one voting station in each division.

"Council is pleased to provide residents with easier access to performing their democratic right to vote," said Acting-Reeve Shirley Lakin in the release. "It is important as many participate in this process as possible and by providing additional voting stations we are able to help facilitate it."

At the March 3 County council meeting some residents used the public input session to raise their concerns over not having additional voting stations in this by-election, which wasn't the case, for example, in 2013 general election.

At that meeting a motion was passed that looked into approaching Alberta Municipal Affairs for county to have additional voting stations.

According to by-law 864-15 passed by council additional voting stations will be set up at Cynthia Recreation Association in Division 1, Lodgepole Community Hall in Division 2, Carnwood Country Society and Berrymoor Centre in Division 5 and Buck Creek Community Hall in Division 6.

Voting stations that were already in place include Easyford Community Hall in Division 1, Violet Grove Community Hall in Division 2, Braceau County Office in Division 3, Rocky Rapids Hall in Division 4, Lindsie Community Hall in Division 5 and Breton Community Centre in Division 6.

Two candidates are running in the by-election - Bart Guyon and Jason Kennedy with the by-election date set for March 23.

Pembina Area Synergy meeting on March 26

Special to the Western Review

Pembina Area Synergy (PAS) will be holding their next regular meeting on Thursday, March 26th with lunch at noon with the meeting getting under way at 1:00pm. The meeting will be held at the Penn West building and the public is invited to attend. An RSVP to help with planning meal numbers would be appreciated.

PAS regularly hosts speakers at its meetings to provide information to landowners, community residents, and oil and gas representatives in attendance at the meetings. The presentation for the March meeting will be from Trican and will be focused on well-bore cementing and its role in protecting aquifers, etc.

The meeting agenda will also include local industry activity updates provided by participating companies and opportunity for discussion on industry development related topics. Local and provincial Government agencies regularly participate along with representatives from Braceau County and the Town of Drayton Valley, so discussion and information sharing tends to be very pertinent to local issues.

Attending these synergy group meetings is a great opportunity for a community members, industry members, and agencies alike to learn more about what is happening in the area and ask any questions you may have related to industry activities, issues, or practices, both local and general.

The group is comprised of local oil and gas companies, industry service providers, the Alberta Energy Regulator, ESRB, Braceau County, the Town of Drayton Valley, Alberta Health Services, community members, landowners, and other local agencies and organizations.

PAS regularly meets on the fourth Thursday of every second month (except July) beginning in January. Meetings are open to the public.

To RSVP for this meeting, or if you would like more information, contact the group's facilitator at 403-647-0868 or email pembina_area_synergy@gmail.com.

Working to improve tourism

The three big ways may seem to be the town's tourism signature.

A draft terms of reference for the Regional Tourism Authority was presented at a recent joint council meeting which will be taken to respective municipalities.

Joining forces are Town of Drayton Valley, Brazeau County, Drayton Valley Hospitality and Tourism Association (DVHTA) and as a member of joint council meetings, Village of Breton will be in the loop as well.

"We want to work together to amalgamate funding for efficiency and cost effectiveness and maintaining one central organization for tourism. That's the key message and purpose to collectively grow the area as a vibrant tourism destination," said Economic Development and Communications Manager Wanda Compton.

The hope is the regional authority be up and running in September.

"A regional tourism authority, which is the one we are proposing right now, will be an amalgamation of efforts under one central authority that would be responsible for all of tourism, marketing and promotion and growing Drayton Valley," said Dan Sullivan, DVHTA chairman.

As the plans for this authority go forward, Brazeau Regional Tourism Society (BRTS) - the old tourism society will be left behind. County decided to not fund it as it is its own since the town pulled out its funding.

A volunteer for Brazeau

Regional Tourism Society, Scott Robertson raised some concerns at the joint council meeting as the new regional authority is getting forward.

"I am happy with the direction that they are going. I just want to know that the contract drawn up in this partnership is not so easy to dissolve. Do the same thing again by all means, make sure you know the contract so it's not easy for one of the members to say 'I am not paying for this,'" said Robertson in a phone interview.

He also has concerns about clearing up the old society, which volunteers are in the process of doing right now.

"My whole point of it is you guys have already done this partnership and it didn't work. In the meantime you have taken a board of directors who are all volunteers to help out with tourism and you have forced them into a position [whereby] they are learning how to do a not-for-profit society. And that hasn't been easy," he said.

Drayton Valley Town manager Manny Deol explained BRTS didn't have DVHTA on board.

"That was an old formation which basically at that time we didn't have the hotel association in place, so now we have hotel association who has the money, and the county and town will fund a new loan," said Deol.

Funding for the new project is coming from DVHTA, town and the county. Funds from DVHTA will go toward marketing activities and town and county will fund the operating cost of the project.

Sullivan said it is too early to know how much funding DVHTA will put forward, but the amount will be in the six figures. Compton explained in the first year the operational budget is set to be $150,000 with a 15 per cent increase over each year after, but she noted that the figures are part of a draft.

"The mandate for Brazeau Regional Tourism in the beginning was to run the visitor location centre at the Historical Society site as well as help small operators grow. We wanted to get to the next level and really step up the regional component and marketing, which takes significant dollars, and commit a partner. So it's basically an evolution of an organization that did wonderful things to develop tourism and promote tourism in the area for many years. We have evolved. We are taking it to the next level," said Compton.

The society will comprise of a board and a full-time position. "We will have enough funding to hire a professional to run that organization; somebody who runs full time for it, someone who will put together a strategic and a tactical plan and execute it for them," said Sullivan.

"That [Brazeau Regional Tourism Society] was not a comprehensive board that was basically opening of a tourist booth, running that part of the business. This will be comprehensive. It will be better funded," said Deol.

Robertson said he wanted to see a change in location from where the old society booth operated, which is where the local museum is located. He wants to see a location that would be more visible with better parking facilities.

The creation of the Regional Tourism Authority has not yet been decided.

Mothers who were abused as kids get support

► Program aims to promote healing and healthy parenting

By Brenda Pettie

The Pembina Crisis Connection Society is offering a program to help make parenting less overwhelming for women who had a history of child abuse.

The Mother's Group for Survivors of Childhood Abuse is an eight-week program being offered for free including childcare services.

Dianne Nikiforuk, Pembina Crisis Connection Society chairperson, said it is the first time a support group like this is being offered in town and has been made possible because of interest shown by some local women.

"There have been women who have indicated that they believe the abuses they have suffered in childhood was impacting them in mothering," Nikiforuk said. "It is for women so that they may have some peace of mind and some healing. We are offering a framework to allow women to let go of the pain and the fear and the sense that it is their fault somehow because they are definately not responsible."

This group of women will be discussing their experiences and sharing their strengths to help each other.

Part of the group will be a presentation of information related to how a history of abuse can sometimes affect parenting and then setting it up so that the participants are able to openly discuss topics," said Brenda Pettie, registered psychologist and group facilitator. "Part of it is also to be able to pull out some of the strategies and wealth of understanding that they already have and to be able to encourage these women to identify their own personal strengths and also be able to share some of that with other group members and be able to build a safe environment for these women to explore some of it."

According to Pettie, these women may have a difficulty figuring out how much protection to give to their children.

"Many mothers who had been abused will often struggle with either being overly protective or at other times, you will see them really struggling with establishing a boundary of what is a safe situation for their child," she said. "So when it comes to being able to screen situations or other adults or other people in their child's world, sometimes, these moms are more extreme. They are either overly protective or they do not know how to set up that protection boundary."

These women may also find themselves reflecting the parenting given to them as a child to their own children.

"We also know that we often parent in a way that we were parented and so depending on the situation. Some of these moms may not have a history of strong parenting role models," Pettie said. "Part of it is also taking a look at how we were parented now infiltrate and set them up as parents in their own way of being a parent."

Schedule and location of the group meetings are yet to be decided by the society.

For more information or to register for the program, contact Brenda Pettie at (780)621-9254 or at pettiep@telus.net.

Appreciating volunteers for all they do

By Brenda Pettie

Colleagues, food and some country music.

The annual volunteer appreciation night event is scheduled for Apr. 15, a night attendees will see Danny Hooper on stage.

Hooper will not only provide entertainment for the evening but also host the event.

"We chose him to cater the audience there because typically the retired folk are the people who have most of the time to volunteer," said Drayton Valley FCSS co-ordinator Lola Strand.

Hooper was born in Edmonton and raised in Tomahawk according to his website.

The annual banquet is a popular one among Drayton Valley volunteers.

"The purpose of the event is to for organizations to be able to show their appreciation to their volunteers for the time they put in," said Strand.

The banquet will be a catered affair by Cobblestone Cafe.

Typically, the event is a sell-out every year.

"We have been sold out every year since I have been here in 2006 and we typically sell 250 tickets," said Strand.

Last year, the event received some help from Frank Maddock High School students, and Strand confirmed they will be looking into that again this year.

Tickets are being sold at the Town of Drayton Valley office with the event being hosted at the MacKenzie Conference Centre.

"It's first come first serve and we do sell out so folks need to go and grab them now," said Strand.

Ag division attends to county's agricultural needs

► Added new equipment and new staff members to provide better services

Justine Kimodan
Western Review

Providing agricultural programs and educating Brazeau county residents about agriculture are just two of many responsibilities of the Agriculture Division of the Brazeau County Community Services Department.

Lisa Rabel, Agricultural Fieldman, said the division oversees five different acts relating to agriculture.

"We are responsible for five different acts and those are the Alberta Weed Control Act, the Agricultural Pest Act, the Conservation Act, the Agriculture Service Board Act, and we also assist with the control of livestock diseases under the Animal House Act and Regulations," she said.

The division's duties are to actively encourage agriculture policies and to educate county residents by providing workshops.

"We promote and develop agriculture policies to meet the needs of our municipality," said Rabel. "Also if there are any surveys that need to be done or pests propping up, we are actively doing surveillance for that and then we also do public extension of it education-wise, and we put on workshops."

The division also provides programs to county residents including the hawkweed spraying program and 20 per cent rebate program.

"One of our very aggressive prohibited noxious weed is called hawkweed. For quality landowners who have these weeds, we will spray an acre of that for them to assist them in trying to get control of this," Rabel said. "Then we have a 20 per cent herbicide rebate program and that is for people who purchase the two chemicals Grazon or Restore. For those who purchase Grazon and Restore and use them to control weeds this year, we will rebate them 20 per cent of the cost of that herbicide."

In order to be able to fulfill all of its responsibilities, the division added more members to its team.

"We have increased our staff this year to work with getting more enforcement and information out there as far as weed and weed control are concerned," said Rabel.

In addition, Rabel said the division purchased new equipment and coordinated with other organizations in providing agricultural services to the county.

"We have added another sprayer to our fleet to help control our brush side of the program because we spray woody vegetation like trees and stuff like that that are within our right of way," she said. "We work in conjunction with public works on that and after they remove the trees, we spray the following year to prevent any regrowth from happening. We have added that so that our main spray truck can focus on areas that have big weed problem. Hopefully, we can split this program up and get more efficient that way."

Environmental factors may affect the division's work, said its job, but Rabel is hopeful that the division will stay efficient with support from the Agricultural Service Board and Brazeau County Council.

"It is kind of hard to predict what challenges may come up this year other than we know there is going to be weed concerns out there and we are going to be tackling those on a situation basis. And then we deal with environmental concerns like the weather and things like that and that can limit us on how many hours we can spend out there spraying and doing those kinds of control," she said. "But other than that, we get support from council and the Ag Service Board, so hopefully we can just make our programs more efficient year with the additional staff and equipment."

Ag Service Board discusses policies and programs

Board prepares for a busy summer with programs and workshops

Western Review

Policies were reviewed and various workshops and programs were discussed by the Agricultural Service Board during a regular board meeting on March 12.

Agricultural Fieldman Lisa Kuhn, and the board was busy with administrative work.

"Right now, it is our policies being reviewed and planning workshops. The board specifically is doing a lot on the administrative side of things like policies and then they attended a provincial conference in January," she said. "That is where we vote on resolutions that are brought forward from agricultural related concerns in the province like weed control, fusarium, which is a crop disease, and sick problems eating farmer's hay and basically it is a huge population of them overrunning our land."

One of the main discussions by board members at the meeting is the review of the revised Sample Policy.

"Farmers can take samples of soil and send them away for analysis for fertility," explained Agricultural Service Board Chairman Allan Goddard. "Do they need nitrogen? What do they need to grow a particular crop? It was a review of a policy that has been in place but, has been revised to meet current needs."

Rabel said sampling of soil is one of many services provided by the Agricultural Division of the Brazeau County Community Services Department.

"What the board has proposed to council is that the Agricultural Services staff will go to producers and take samples for them if they ask, and we do the sampling and then we will send samples off to them for cost," she said. "We then get back with the results so it is a service we provide to the producers of the area."

Another discussion at the board meeting are the workshops available for county residents like the Working Well Workshop.

"It is a workshop put on with Alberta Agriculture and we have water specialists and drillers that come," Rabel said. "It is a workshop full of information like 'what your well looks like from below the ground and how it works' and 'problems you can have with it and how to maintain it'."

The board expects to become busier as summer comes with lots of programs lined up.

"We will be implementing our summer programs, our weed control, our spraying programs, a few other subsidy programs like our fencing program, hawkweed spraying program and then the 20 per cent rebate program," Rabel said. "Summer is a very busy time and the board is there for us to basically provide direction to the administration."

The board is also looking forward to the addition of staff when summer comes.

"Summer staffing will be coming on from the administrative and from the county's perspective," Goddard said.

AG week Canadian Agricultural Safety Week observed from March 15

Cathy Weisman

Canadian Agricultural Safety Week runs March 15th to 21st this year, and is a great time for farmers, farm workers and families to initiate discussion around safety and implementing a health and safety system on their farms.

"It is important to create and implement a health and safety management system that encompasses all aspects of a farm's operations for the entire year," says Laurel Allken, farm safety coordinator for Alberta Agriculture and Rural Development (ARD). "The important first step in creating this system is for farm owners and managers to develop a policy outlining their commitment to safety."

Once that commitment is in place the next steps are to identify hazards and put controls in place to reduce or eliminate the risks associated with those hazards. The very nature of a health and safety system is to include consistent productivity, can make hazard identification a rather daunting task. However, it is the identification and control of hazards that create a safe environment on any website. Can still monitoring for new hazards and reporting and investigating incidents enable owners, managers and workers to make continuous improvements.

"When you look at the benefits of creating a health and safety system, there are five main factors: human, legal and financial," says Allken.

The human factor benefits of a health and safety system are that it not only meets the moral obligation of keeping workers, visitors and family members safe and healthy, but increases morale, motivation and worker retention while meeting consumer expectations of how food is produced. From a legal standpoint a documented safety plan proves due diligence to avoid legal issues and reduces the likelihood of civil or criminal code penalties. The financial benefit of a health and safety system is to include consistent productivity, more effective service delivery, reduction in indirect costs, less equipment or property damage and, in some cases, reduction of

There are many tools and resources available to help farm owners and managers develop a health and safety management system on their farm. Alberta Agriculture and Rural Development is now in the final stages of completing the second pilot program to test the Alberta Farm Safety Plan. It is a tool to help farmers implement a tailored health and safety system for their farming operation. It was developed in consultation with Alberta jobs, skills, training and labour and the Canadian Agricultural Safety Association. The Alberta Farm Safety Plan will be available to help Alberta farmers implement their own health and safety management system this fall.

For more information on the Alberta Farm Safety Plan, visit the ARD farm sales website or contact Laurel Allken by phone at 780-980-4230 or by email at laurel.allken@gov.ab.ca.

Farmers' market celebrated 40 years last week

► Evergreen Farmers market started for the season

Cherry Woodman
Western Review

The Evergreen Farmers' Market marked its 40th year of existence on March 11 at the Chaplins lobby in Dryden Valley and will run each Wednesday from the second week of March to the third week of December from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

According to Colleen Schweninger, Secretary of Dryden Valley Agricultural Society and former Market Manager, the market was first offered by this organization back in 1975. The first managers were Bobbie Loddard and Colleen Schwartz with the founding that it is a place where the community can feel included in their community, to speak for themselves and make healthy food choices.

"We are launching the Power of Produce (POP) Kids Club where children will receive a membership card and grocery tote so they may shop for what food they would like to buy. If they choose fresh fruit, veggies, eggs, dairy, pickles, preserves or plants for the garden for their $2 to $3, they will get a stamp on their card. Once they have spent at least $10 on fresh food, they will get $5 Market Bucks that they can spend with any vendor. The age group for this program is four to 12, but if younger or older children wish to join, they may do so up to age 14, and there's no cost to join," said Schweninger.

"We would also like to hold special events for kids during the first market of the month during the summer.

July 1 is a market day, so we will be joining the Canada Day festivities at the Omniplex and hosting a Pie Eating Contest for POP Kids Club Members.

"We are looking for four youths, aged 12 and up, to help out at this market on those special days. Please speak to the Market Manager, Colleen Schweninger if you are interested."

The Ag Society is raising money this year by holding a raffle (license #A81949) prize draw for a 2014 CanAm 500cc Quad. The raffle began last year but not enough tickets sold before the draw deadline. Tickets are $10 each and are on sale at the Farmers' Market on Wednesdays as well as at Dudley's, UPA, Pina Choux Recreation, and from Ag Society Directors. Special to the Western Review

Show us your stuff. Canadian farm kids! The Monsanto Fund Opportunity Scholarship Program is now accepting applications for 2015. Sponsored by the philanthropic arm of Monsanto Company, this program offers graduating grade 12 students from farm families the opportunity to capture one of 65 entrance scholarships valued at $1,500 each to help fund post-secondary studies in agriculture or agriculture-related fields.

educational institution. Those students of deserving students have received a total of more than $1.5 million since the program launched using corporate funds in 1984. Transition to the Monsanto Fund in 2012 has enabled more students to win scholarships due to consistent funding for the program.

"The quality of bright young people who have grown up in farm families across Canada is just amazing, and the Monsanto Fund Opportunity Scholarship program allows us to recognize their accomplishments," said Kelly Funke, public affairs manager with Monsanto Canada. "These scholarships help students who have chosen to pursue a career in agriculture start off on the right foot."

Monsanto Fund Opportunity Scholarships are open to students who come from a family farm with confirmed plans to enroll in their first year of post-secondary education in agriculture or an agriculture-related program at a Canadian educational institution.

Scholarship application forms and posters in both French and English are in the process of being distributed to high schools, 4-H clubs, provincial and federal agriculture offices, farm retail outlets and seed companies. Application forms and complete program details are also available from Monsanto's Client Care line at 1-800-667-4344 or they can be accessed online at www.monsanto.ca.

All applications will be reviewed by an independent panel of judges and winning entries will be announced in September 2015. The Monsanto Fund Opportunity Scholarship program will provide 65 scholarships to deserving students this year.

► Club and Fusarium Head Blight are not a problem

Cathy Westman
Western Review

Unlike its neighbours, Brazeau County is free from Clubroot and Fusarium Head Blight, says Agricultural Fieldman Lisa Icke.

What are Clubroot and Fusarium Head Blight, you may ask?

According to Icke, Clubroot ("Ramosus" or "Ramosus") is a fungus that causes galls to form on roots of susceptible plants, impacting cruciferous crops such as canola, cabbage, radishes, and rutabagas. The galls restrict water and nutrients from moving through the plant, thereby affecting the growth and yield.

Symptoms of Clubroot are the club shaped galls on the roots along with wilting and premature ripening of the plant. The spores from the fungus are easily transportable and can live in soil for up to 20 years.

Rabe was asked how Agricultural Services might help these farmers?

With regard to Clubroot, explained Icke, canola fields in Brazeau County are surveyed during the growing season by an appointed inspector. In 2014, University of Alberta also completed surveys and found one suspect field. Laboratory testing was completed and determined the plant tissue did not have the clubroot pathogen present.

"Moving forward into 2015, it is imperative that best management practices be followed. Le Crop rotation and equipment sanitation. To date, Brazeau County has no confirmed cases of Clubroot but is surrounded by municipalities that do. By following preventative practices, you protect your land from this disease," said Icke.

Preventative measures include the following:

• Crop Rotation - A long rotation between canola crops (1 to 4 years) is the single most important preventative measure. • Equipment Sanitation - A history of short canola rotations (1 to 2 years).

When moving from field to field, clean dirt from equipment including tires.

• Infested Areas - Avoid buying hay or straw from regions where Clubroot is known to occur or suspected. Straw or hay could be carrying soil and the Clubroot fungus.

Rabe said this is the fifth year that inspections have been held in canola fields within the municipality. This crop is gaining popularity each year and producers are diligent about rotating their crops each year so Clubroot has a hard time to grow or spread. Producers will be planting their canola crops around the middle of May, she added.

How to avoid staff layoffs

Dear Working Wise
I think I'm going to have to lay off some of my staff due to falling oil prices, but I'm concerned that when business picks up again, I'll have trouble finding the experienced workers I need. Do I have any other options? Signed, Worried.

Dear Worried,
It's been said that difficult times require difficult choices. However, there are a few things companies can consider to avoid or minimize staff layoffs.

You can try increasing efficiency. GO Productivity offers free onsite assessments, workshops, and a self-assessment tool. To learn more, visit goproductivity.ca or call 1-844-245-8278 toll-free.

You could ask your staff to brainstorm ideas for saving money or finding new customers for your products/services. You might discover an exciting new market, learn that your staff are willing to accept salary or benefit concessions, or that senior staff are willing to accept early retirement.

Before you make any decisions, though, you should give some serious thought to how much money your layoffs are actually going to save.

Layoffs can be expensive - costs can include severance pay, banked vacation entitlements and outplacement services.

Layoffs can be time-consuming - your management team will be focused on paperwork and training the rest of the staff to tackle the remaining work instead of making your company money.

Layoffs may only save you money if you don't have to hire staff back - recruiting and training new employees can cost up to 50 per cent of an employee's annual salary.

For more insight into layoffs, read Thinking About Layoffs? What You Need to Know Before Letting People Go on the ALIS website at <http://alis.alberta.ca>.

One promising option for you may be the federal government's Work-sharing program. Work-sharing helps employers retain their skilled workers and avoid the costly process of recruiting and training new staff when business returns to normal.

The program also helps workers maintain their skills and job by supplementing their wages with Employment Insurance benefits on the days they are not working. The program is open to private, publicly-held and not-for-profit organizations, which have been in business for more than two years.

Work-sharing Agreements can be as short as six weeks and as long as 26 weeks.

For more information on the Work-sharing program, visit www.servicecanada.gc.ca/en/work_sharing.

If you still believe that you must lay off your staff, please note that employers who intend to lay off 50 or more staff from a single location are required to provide the Employment Standards Minister a minimum of four weeks notice. For more information on the Notice of Group Layoffs requirement, visit <http://bit.ly/1AB019S>.

For more information on available assistance for employers considering layoffs, contact a Workforce Consultant through the Employer Helpline at: 1-800-661-3753 or email ABWorkforce@gov.ab.ca.

Workforce consultants can help you navigate the various employer services available to help you tackle your labour and workforce challenges.

Help for Albertans affected by layoffs is available at: <http://humanservices.alberta.ca/employees-facing-layoff>.

Good luck!

Canada Blooms: My Top 10 List

Right now Toronto is hosting the largest flower, garden, and home show on the continent. Canada Blooms and the National Home Show have come together for the 4th edition of the combined event at the Direct Energy Centre, Exhibition Place.

Canada Blooms is celebrating their 19th anniversary: not bad for an idea that was hatched by Tony DiGiovanni and Kathy Dembroski in 1994. At that time they created the festival by combining the resources of the industry trade association, Landscape Ontario, and the Garden Club of Toronto. Together they have made horticultural history. Canada Blooms is the event that all other public festivals of this kind aspire to become.

So it is with enthusiasm that I present my list of the top 10 features of Canada Blooms. I met with the executive director of Canada Blooms, Terry Caddo, and together we came up with the 10 best reasons for you to attend this year. Here they are:

I New Hall Ambiance. When you walk down the alley of giant palms towards the feature garden area you will be greeted with area you will be greeted with state of the art lighting that highlights the unique designs of the gardens. Over a quarter of a million dollars has been invested in professionally designed lighting to produce the very best effect.

2 Toronto Flower Show. This is a show-within-a-show. While the entire area taken up by Canada Blooms is almost 6 acres, the Floral Hall is not to be missed. It includes one of the top floral competitions in the world.

3 Fresh flowers. Smell them, photograph them and, perhaps most importantly, buy them! Pick Ontario has selected 10 of the best growers in Ontario to supply fresh cut flowers in their display

4 Canada Blooms Promenade. As you enter the festival through the main doors on the south side of the building, look for an alley of 50 Majesty Palm (Ravenea rivularis) trees. Skip the trip to Florida and plan on staying at Canada Blooms for 5 Landscape Ontario Otlum Outdoor Exercise Garden. No, you don't have to do exercises to enjoy this. Just sit and watch gorgeous, able-bodied amateur athletes demonstrate how you can use your outdoor space to get fit. Over 4,500 sq. ft. of space is devoted to showing how daily living can be incorporated into your outdoor living space.

6 Chaise Lounge Art. Don't Sit Here! The top florists of Toronto are challenged to create works of floral art using chaise lounges which are featured in the entrance to the Floral Hall. I know, it is hard to picture. Bring your camera.

7 Kids. Gardening and kids is a theme of this year's big event. Check out the Blenheimstock feature garden, which returns to Canada Blooms again this year and is always a huge hit. Kids can get their hands and knees dirty, learn how to garden and they will plant their own vegetable seeds and flowers to take home.

8 Listen and Learn. There are over 200 hours of lectures, demonstrations and (dare I say it) entertainment at Blooms. The Celebrity Stage features some great talent, to be sure, including Albert Brulé - no one gets a crowd going like this guy! It is all about learning and having fun. Look for Niki Jabbour, Tara Nolan and, of course, Frankie Flowers!

10 Feature Gardens. Oh my, it is hard to find the words to describe the gardens at this year's edition of Blooms. There are over 20 creations that have incorporated the theme 'Let's Play'. The standard of creativity and execution is unsurpassed anywhere on the continent (which is why this is such a successful event!)

Every year exit surveys tell us that the #1 reason that people come to Canada Blooms is to see these gorgeous gardens. And why not? If you were to have them built in your own yard, you would need almost an acre (they take up about 36,000 sq ft) and it would cost you over eight million dollars.

Truth is, there is only one place that you can go for such a wide variety of garden experiences and this is it.

13-year-old girl stabbed dogs for fun

➤ Guilty to killing and torturing dogs meant jail time for a Manitoba teen

QMI Agency

A 13-year-old Northern Manitoba girl whose disturbing crime spree included the killing and torture of two dogs was sentenced Thursday to six months' time served.

Judge Doreen Redhead sentenced the girl to an additional two years' supervised probation and ordered that she not be allowed to own a pet for three years.

Police questioned the girl and several other children for an unrelated investigation in August 2014 when "several incidents involving the killing and torture of dogs" came to light, Crown attorney Adam Flanders told court.

Court heard one dog had a wire wrapped around its neck before it was hoisted over a tree limb and stabbed.

A forensic report quoted the girl as saying the dog was "annoying" and liked to bite people and that she and her

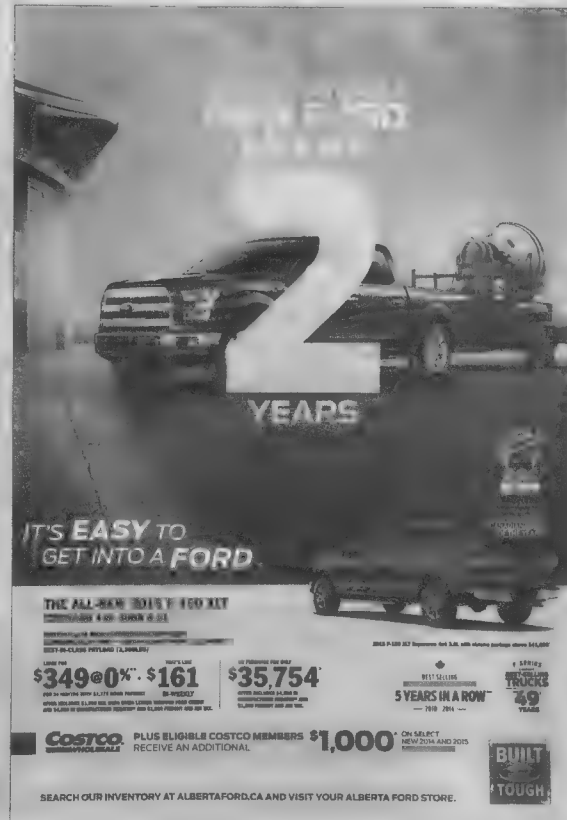

In a second incident, the girl and a female co-accused dropped a log on a puppy, killing it. The girls then hung the dog on a tree and stabbed it.

The girl told a psychiatrist she was sorry for killing the dogs, "but we all make mistakes."

The girl pleaded guilty to an additional count of breaking and entering as well as vandalizing a cemetery.

Here's How It Works:

Fill in the numbers 1 through 9 in each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You have to figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numbers already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Let go better and better as the week goes on, Taurus. Expect a few obstacles, but remember there's nothing you cannot tackle, especially when you get some help.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
Scorpio, use this week to address an unresolved issue. Tackle every project thrown your way head-on and with vigor. Others will notice your efforts.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21
A situation arises at work that evokes strong emotions among your co-workers. Stay neutral on the issue until you have had enough time to gather more information.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
Sagittarius, try not to over-think things this week. Sometimes the simplest solution to a problem is the best solution. Keep this in mind at the office.

CANCER - Jun 22/Jul 22
A recently started relationship is going great, Cancer. Now might be a great time to take the next step with your special someone. Expect this person to share your "things".

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
Capricorn, a distraction this week proves so distracting that you neglect other responsibilities. While you may like a challenge, don't let it consume your life.

LEO - Jul 23/Aug 23
A roll of adrenaline this week will help you sail through any projects that need diversity, Leo. Take a break every now and then so you don't burn out.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
You yearn for privacy this week, Aquarius. Make the most of any opportunity to seek and find alone and spend some time deep in reflection and thought.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20
Cherish any completely unassuming this week, Pisces. But they must get done one way or another. Delegate some tasks.
